While .360 Buckhammer may be the new kid on the block when it comes to straight wall cartridges, it comes in swinging for the fences with unrivaled performance and a point to prove. That sort of tenacity requires a platform that can keep up. Enter the Henry Lever Action X Model – a platform combining modern performance with classic lever action lineage. Developed in partnership with Remington Ammunition, .360 Buckhammer was created to rule the deer woods with a design optimized for lever action rifles, accuracy out to 200 yards and beyond, higher velocity, and less bullet drop than the competition. In short, it's the ultimate straight wall cartridge for today's whitetail woodsman, and there's no better companion than this feature-packed rifle. Tough synthetic furniture shaves off some weight compared to wood while providing worry-free durability when hunting gets rough and rugged. A Picatinny rail section at the bottom of the forearm is an excellent location for a bi-pod to steady your shots, and M-Lok accessory slots and inline swivel studs are yours to use as you see fit. The round blued steel barrel features a 1 in 12 twist to stabilize various bullet weights and 5/8×24 threading at the muzzle for a suppressor or other muzzle device.
